

Susan B. Reid

Board Member

Susan B. Reid is a retired education and workforce development professional with decades of experience in higher education, continuing education, workforce development, and community engagement. She earned her Bachelor of Science in Workforce Education from Southern Illinois University and completed graduate studies in Business Administration and Continuing Education at Fayetteville Technical Community College.

Before retiring, Susan served at Cape Fear Community College, where she coordinated workforce development and continuing education programs while building strong partnerships among business leaders, educators, and community organizations. Throughout her career, she managed educational initiatives, supported adult learners, coordinated community partnerships, and developed programs that aligned education with workforce needs.

Susan is a proud resident of Wilmington, North Carolina, and remains actively involved in serving her community as a member of the Rotary Club of Wilmington. Through Rotary, she is committed to the organization's motto of Service Above Self, supporting philanthropic initiatives and projects that improve the lives of children, families, and the community.

As a member of the Darden-Perry Academy Board of Directors, Susan brings extensive experience in educational leadership, strategic planning, governance, and community collaboration. She will provide leadership in philanthropy, donor relations, community outreach, and partnership development, helping the Academy establish lasting relationships with businesses, civic organizations, foundations, and community leaders who share the school's vision.

Susan is passionate about expanding educational opportunities for all children and is honored to support Darden-Perry Academy's mission of creating an innovative dual-language learning environment where hearing and deaf students learn together through English and American Sign Language.
